On Oct. 15 at 6:00 p.m, an entusiastic crowd lined the streets of campus to watch the annual Homecoming parade. The route took floats constructed by student organizations, the Marching Illini and even a fire engine down Pennsylvania Avenue and Dorner and Gregory Drives.

On Oct. 5, an era of political protest, hippies and rock-and-roll revisited Assemby Hall to see the hit 1960s group, the Beach Boys, played their legendary tunes. Songs such as "Surfin' Safari," "Help me Rhonda" and "Surfin' USA" were some of the favorites played. Only one of the orginal five members of the band was left, but even with the replacement band members, the music still had its original hip-hop feeling.

Howie Mandel performed at the $3 welcome-back show at Assembly Hall on Sept. 18. Assembly Hall sponsors a show annually to thank students for supporting them with their service and general fees. Women gather outside of the Union after the "Take Back the Night" march. The annual event, held on April 30, was intended to raise awareness about sexual assault and women's safety on campus. Tina Sanchez, senior in LAS, speaks to reporters from Channel 3, following the Rape Crisis Rally at the University YMCA. Five days before the rally on April 1, three men sexually assaulted an Urbana woman near the 500 block of West Green Street, making the rally a relevant event.

Construction

Campus is a mes

Much of Campustown and various areas of the University of Illinois went under major renovations during the summer of 1999 and continued into the school year. Many students considered the construction an inconvenience with the extra noise and tractors blocking their paths to class. Campus Property Management contracted this new apartment building on the corner of Fourth and Daniel Streets. The building is expected to be available for leasing in 2000. Fourth Street was turned into a one-way for one block due to the construction.

The construction near the Armory was a major construction site, blocking off Armory Street to all traffic. "I'm happy to see that people are concerned with keeping this campus up to status, but still managing to keep the tradition of the University," said Jessica Roberts, sophomore in FAA.

"I'm hopeful it will be over soon"

Moms were entertained by a fashion show, flower show, craft fair, the annual IUB musical, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and various choral performances. Late-night entertainment included visits to Campustown's bars and clubs, as the moms completed their glimpse of college life.

Bidnight attractions included karaoke machines, hot tubs, moonwalkers and sumo wrestling, like at Alpha Gamma Rho's and Alpha Epsilon Phi's celebration. Halloween was an exciting holiday at the University of Illinois. Students dressed up, went to the bars or went to parties. Cornellius Zivaljevic wore a grotesque werewolf mask to scare people. Six University students rented gorilla costumes and invaded the campus. Erik White and Mark Bradley, sophmores in LAS, were two of the gorillas. They disturbed lectures, chased students with bananas and danced on the field at the football game.

Love Quest, sponsored by the Illini Union Board, was a version of the MTV show "Singled Out." More than 100 people attended the event held in the Illini Union Ballroom. Contestants for the show received e-mails a week before and were asked to provide information about themselves to put them in categories. During the game the students were then chosen based on these categories. The Illini Union Board was pleased with the results and hoped to host the event again.

To go along with the theme of the show, Exposed, the members of the group took off one article of clothing after each song they performed. Another aspect of the show that the Xtension Chords added just for this performance was comedy. They sang one song with their mouths full of crackers, spraying the stage with every word.

When students thought of campus police, they imagined bar raids and squad cars parked in front of bars at closing time, but the officers were actually very understanding. On the night of Nov. 19, a Quad streaker was let go with a warning and an order to "behave yourself." An intoxicated underage student threw a beer bottle against a wall in front of the reporting officer and was given a referral to McKinley for counseling, and a man from Danville with an invalid license was allowed to go if his friend drove.

University of Illinois police officer John Brown and other police officers were assigned a designated area. They randomly patrolled within that area during 10-hour shifts. There was no set pattern or route that would make squad cars predictable and avoidable. Brown graduated from Southern Illinois University, and he thought the experience gave him a better understanding of U of I students.

There was something to do for every type of dad, from concerts by the Black Chorus and the Jazz Band, to the Northwestern football game, to an evening with Bill Cosby at the Assembly Hall. By tailgating and bar hopping, many students introduced their fathers to the social aspect of their home away from home.

Until Nov. 9, the Medieval Sword Fighting Club fought field battles south of the Japan House on Lincoln Avenue. They moved to the Armory for the colder months. The battles were simulated between two teams, not necessarily of equal numbers. People arrived, changed into their costumes and brought various weapons. Each battle began when the two teams were assembled together on opposite sides of the battlefield. A fighter signaled to begin and the teams advanced on each other. Different sized battles splintered off the main grouping as warriors sought some advantage from terrain or tree cover. A hit to any part of the body rendered that part incapacitated.

The Krannert Center Student Association hosted its 35th annual Holiday Tree Lighting ceremony for the Crisis Nursery in Urbana on Dec. 5. Preceding the tree lighting, the Xtension Chords sang a cappella arrangements and Santa debuted with his elves. When he gave the signal, the crowd clapped to bring the tree lights on. The event, established in 1971, featured the "Giving Tree," which is located in the lobby of Krannert. Ornaments that contain a homeless child's wish for the holiday season were on the tree. Donors chose an ornament and filled out personal information so the Crisis Nursery could contact them for a donation to the child.

Snow fell on the University of Illinois campus through the months of January and February. While some students enjoyed the opportunity to build snowmen and have snowball fights, others found the snow to be an unwanted challenge. The unplowed sidewalks were especially dangerous for physically disabled students who were forced to use the roads to avoid injury. Eventually the University was able to catch up with the snow and ice, and the sidewalk were cleared.

On April 23-24, the Rodeo Club held its first Rodeo Club Stampede since the early 1980s. For $8, students could watch bands perform, and cowboys from around the world compete in the rodeo at T.K. She competed in the barrel race, which was the only rodeo event in which women competed. The rodeo donated 10 percent of its money to members who competed in collegiate contests, helping to defer the costs. Rachel Bailey, senior in ACES was also a member of the rodeo club, and Miss Rodeo Illinois for 2000. "Rodeos are so much fun! You get to meet a lot of wonderful and interesting people," said Bailey.

The Child Development Laboratory housed nearly 40 three and four-year olds from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. During a typical day, the children were involved in activities such as group time, outdoor activities, lunch and naps. The laboratory's observation booth provided an opportunity for University of Illinois students to observe the children and their progress. Classes such as HDFS 202 required students to watch the children for four hours each week and create one lesson plan per week. Janet Choi, a second year student worker and junior in CBA, said her duties included supervising the children, playing with them and cleaning.

The Clothesline project was a display of T-shirts made by female survivors of violence or by people who cared about these victims. T-shirts were displayed in residence halls across campus to bring awareness to violence and help assist in the healing process. The program began in Hyannis, Mass., in the Fall of 1990 and has expanded across the United States and to other countries. Different colored shirts represented different types of violence.

The Illini Lion Dance Troupe was an organization dedicated to performing the art of the lion dance. Through intricate costumes and the use of drums and symbols, the troupe performed the dance to portray the legend of the lion that saved a Chinese village. For the lion dance, a lion made of two people danced around a stage. The drummer played a beat by following the movements of the lion. The cymbal followed the beat of the drum. Johan Phoea, senior in Engineering, founded the organization in 1997. He learned the art of lion dancing in Singapore.

While not everyone considered cheerleading a sport, the cheerleaders themselves took their job seriously. In addition to regular three-hour practices three times a week, the male cheerleaders lifted weights three times a week and the female cheerleaders lifted twice a week and attended an aerobics class. After several difficult years, Illini earn a bowl game

With a vastly improved passing game, the Illini football team created a buzz around campus that was unheard of during the past two seasons. The Illini began the season with three wins over non-conference opponents while averaging 40 points per game.

However, a strong Big Ten schedule awaited. Following the 3-0 start, the Illini lost the next three games to Michigan State, Indiana, and Minnesota. Hoping to get back into their winning ways, the Illini traveled to Ann Arbor Michigan to face the ninth ranked Michigan Wolverines. The Illini came back from a third quarter 28-7 deficit to win 35-29 in the greatest comeback win is school history.

The Illini followed the historic win with a loss to second ranked Penn State before regrouping and winning its last three games. One of those wins came against twenty-fifth ranked Ohio State in Columbus, Ohio. The Illini won 46-20 and handed Ohio State its worst loss at home in over 50 years. The win qualified the Illini for a bowl game, their first in 5 years.

The Illini will play the University of Virginia on December 30, 1999 in the Micron PC Bowl in Miami, Florida.

Lloyd set the record for the most receiving yards by a freshman in a season with 454 yards. Sophomore quarterback Kurt Kittner made significant improvements from his freshman year. After one touchdown pass and seven interceptions in 1998, Kittner threw 22 touchdowns and four interceptions in 1999. He was tied with University alum Jeff George for the record for most touchdown passes in a single season. The improvement on offense led to the second highest point production in a season. STREETFEST '99

Streetfest '99 adds to tailgating tradition

Before every home football game was a tailgating party. Countless tents and vans lined up outside Memorial Stadium, while the smell of barbeque filled the air.

In addition to the traditional tailgating that is a mainstay at the University of Illinois there were additions to the schedule this year. Competing at their best Women's soccer at the University of Illinois continued on its path of excellence as it completed its third season as a varsity sport. The beginning of the season saw many changes as head coach Jillian Ellis left for UCLA and assistant coach Tricia Talierferro was named as her replacement. Unphased by the change in leadership, the team won its first five games. As the season continued, the Illini were ranked as high as 15 before injuries caused concern. Without some of their key players, the offense struggled. Despite this adversity, the Illini were determined to make the 1999 season memorable.

The team ended the season with an overall record of 12-8-2 in the Big Ten. Emily Brown, sophomore in LAS, set a school record with 18 goals and 40 points. The team completed its most successful season with a school best sixth-place finish in the Big Ten during the regular season, and its first post-season victory over Indiana in the Big Ten Tournament.

For the second straight year, the women's cross country team struggled for consistency in their line-up. The team struggled to a 10th place finish at the Big Ten Championships and a 13th place finish at the NCAA Midwest Regional Meet. Record-breaking seniors take Illini back to the NCAA Tournament

With a fourth place finish in the Big Ten conference and a birth in the NCAA tournament, the Illini Women's volleyball team triumphed in 1999.

One member of the volleyball team attributed their success to the leadership skills of the seniors.

"Our seniors did a really great job taking a leadership role on the team and we are sorry to see them go," middle blocker Betsy Spicer, junior in LAS, said.

There were three seniors on the volleyball team; Melissa Beitz, Tracey Marshall and Sara Sorrell.

Beitz, ALS, collected 5,845 assists to make her the Illini volleyball record holder for career assists. Marshall, LAS, broke the Illini career digs record with 1,398 digs. Sorrell ALS, played in every Illini volleyball game, 119, since her freshman year.

While the team excelled in Illini records, individua members of the team received tournament and conference honors. Spicer was named first team All-Big Ter conference. She was also named State Farm Illini Classic MVP. Beitz and Marshall were named to the pre-season All-Big Ten team.

"It was a huge honor. I can attribute it to my team," Spicer said. As a middle blocker, she depended on solid passes from her teammates.

Bowling over Wahoos leaves bittersweet feeling

From 0-11, 3-8, to 8-4, 1999 was a great turnaround for the Illini. On Dec. 30, the Fighting Illini played in their first bowl game in more than five years. The Fighting Illini took on the University of Virginia at Pro Player Stadium in Miami, Fla. and came out with a 62-21 blowout victory in the MicronPC.com Bowl. The Virginia Cavaliers defense had a hard time keeping up with the Illini offense. The total damage amounted to 611 yards of offense for the Illini, an Illini bowl and MicronPC.com Bowl record. The 63 points were also an Illini bowl record and a MicronPC Bowl record. Kurt Kittner was named the MVP.

Performing in numbers

The Illiniettes were a self-run group of 28 precision dancers, and a division of the Marching Illini. They did not have a coach or sponsor, but two student captains, Sarah Kopke and Alison Osterbur. All of their routines and funds come from within the squad. Like every other Illini football fan, the Illiniettes were ecstatic when they found out Illinois was going to a bowl game. The Illiniettes have supported the Illini through the entire season, so it was only natural for them to be on the field in Florida.

The dancing and cheering did not end when the football season did. The Illiniettes supported the basketball team as well. They choreographed routines using everything from jazz to funk, and even involved the Orange Krush. The Illiniettes kept the team and the crowd pumped whatever the season.

ORANGE KRUSH

Giving time to the community, honoring tradition and maintaining loyalty epitomizes the Orange Krush

The Orange Krush was bigger than ever, having more than 500 students. They took huge strides toward their goal of becoming the premier student organization in college basketball. One of the highlights for the year's Krush was a trip to the United Center to watch Illinois take on Duke. Members of the Orange Krush presented Dick Vitale with a check for $2,000 to the Jimmy V. Foundation. "Not only did we get to meet Vitale, but we even drove him back to his hotel," said Jared Gelfond, freshman in LAS. The Orange Krush has always raised money for local charities and scholarships; this year they expected to surpass last year's total of $52,000. Another milestone for the Krush was the creation of the Matt Heldman/Orange Krush Scholarship Fund. The annual award will serve as a tribute to the former Illini basketball player, who died in 1999.

Reaching for national exposure

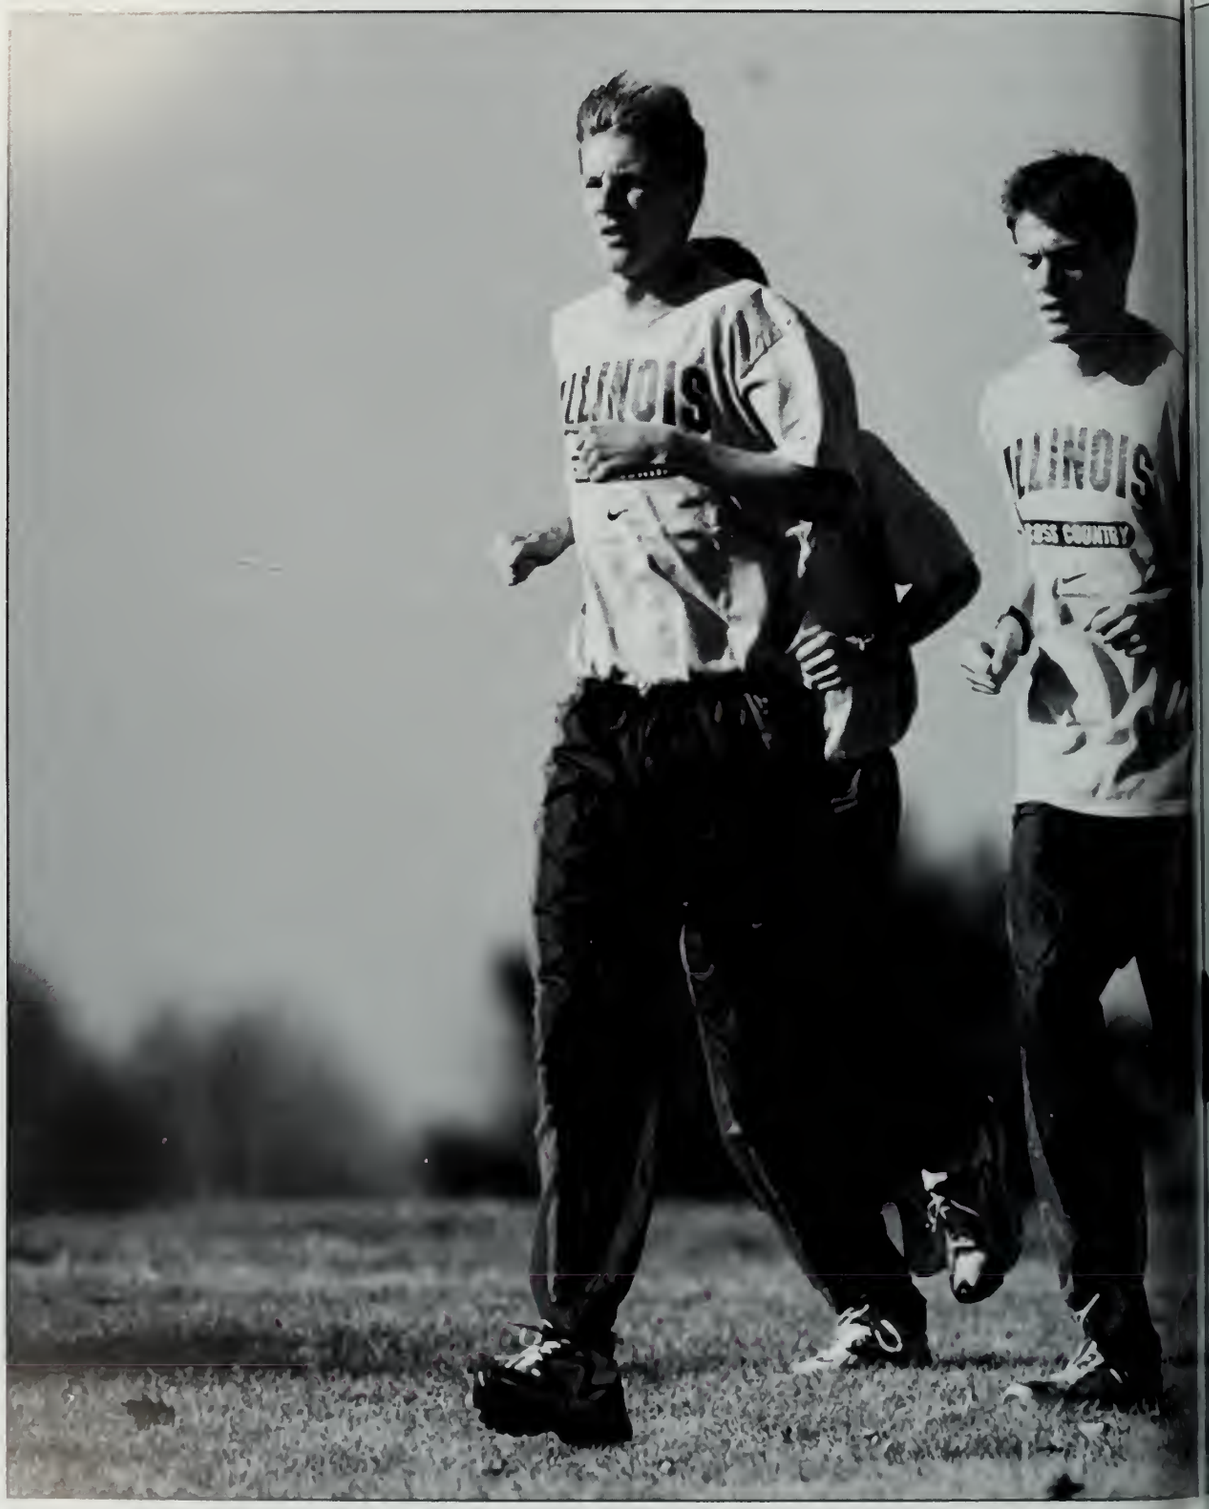

It was an exceptionally good year for the Illini women's swimming team. "We've had a real good season and have been real strong," said head coach Jim Lutz. Two women qualified for the NCAA tournament. Anna Christiansen, sophomore in LAS, swam the 400-yard individual medley, the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard backstroke. Jessica Aveyard, sophomore in LAS, swam the 200-yard backstroke, the 500-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle. "[The NCAA] has been a goal of mine and something I've always wanted to do," said Aveyard. Last year, they had one swimmer compete in the NCAA. Lutz considered this years increase in swimmers for the NCAA, "a pretty good deal." The Olympic time trials also felt an increase in Illini influence this year. Less than 1 percent of all swimmers in the nation qualified for this prestigious event. This year six swimmers went. "As far as national exposure, this has been our best year," said Lutz.

Showcasing their athleticism with alley-oops and slam dunks, the Illini brought back excitement to Assembly Hall

Having gone undefeated in Australia over the summer, the expectations of the talented and youthful Illini basketball team were high. Early in the year, the team played difficult non-conference opponents such as Duke, Seton Hall, Maryland and Kansas. Coach Lon Kruger earned his 300th victory during this stretch of non-conference games. It was fitting that this victory came against Texas Pan-American, a school he formerly coached. "We all congratulated him. It's quite an accomplishment," said Cory Bradford, sophomore in LAS. This tough non-conference schedule helped them prepar for their Big Ten opponents. Despite a 1-3 start in Big Te conference play and a few injuries that sidelined severa players, the Illini finished the Big Ten schedule strong an earned a bid to the NCAA Tournament. They finished th regular season with a record of 19-8; 11-5 in the Big Te Conference. "I'm proud of what this group has done said Kruger. "They've kept making progress; they've no been distracted. Winning more than two-thirds of the their games, and finishing in the upper echelon of the Big Ten, it was yet another women's team that the University of Illinois could be proud of. Coach Theresa Grentz's team had one of the most potent offenses in the nation, averaging more than 70 points a game. Guard Allison Curtin, sophomore in Education, and forward Tauja Catchings, senior in LAS, led the Illini, who were supported by players such as senior guards Kylie Martin, LAS, and Melissa Parker, senior in ALS, as well as forward Susan Blauser, ALS. The team had a record of 22-10 going into the NCAA Tournament.

Grappling with success

With a season record of 13-1 overall, and 6-1 in the Big Ten, the University of Illinois Director of Athletics, Ron Guenther and the Board of Trustees approved a three-year contract extension for head coach Mark Johnson. Johnson's overall record of 91-24-1 (.789) would keep him with the program through at least the 2005 season. "My staff and I have worked hard at turning our program into a top-ten team, and I feel we can challenge for the national title on a yearly basis," said Johnson.

The Illinois wrestlers closed their regular season b defeating Purdue, 30-3. Their only defeat of the seaso was to No. 1 Iowa. The Illini traveled to West Lafayett Indiana, March 4 and 5 for the Big Ten Championship The Illini were led by Ryan Escobar, junior in LAS; junio in ALS Griff Powell, Pat Quirk and John Lockhart; senio in ALS Carl Perry, Bill Zeman, Ben King and Na Patrick; and Adam Tirapelle, senior in LAS. Inexperience causes inconsistent play

After winning the Big Ten Championship the year before, the 1999 University of Illinois baseball team had high expectations. After losing seven seniors to graduation, there were many new faces on the squad. Fortunately, the Illini returned six of the nine members from the 1998 squad.

The players were very young however, youth led to positive outcomes in the end. The pitching staff was young and at times lacked the consistency, but the coaches always remained positive.

"Our pitching staff is a little shaky," said D.J. Svihlik, junior in LAS. "I think the guys get a little nervous out there sometimes because we do have a very talented, but young staff."

Even with a young team, they were very impressive throughout the season and proved they were capable of winning. Despite injuries and slumps, they maintained a winning record and earned a spot in the Big Ten Tournament at the end of the season.

The team's overall record was 34 wins and 22 losses, 15-12 in the Big Ten. The Big Ten Conference was stronger this year, leaving the young and inexperienced Illini on the short end of many games.

The first night game was played on April 27 against Illinois State, ending with a 7-6 victory. While playing under the lights of Illinois Field, the Illini posted a 4-0 record.

Never so easy

The 1998-99 golf team provided the highest finish since the 1990 season.

Led by seniors Mark Henderson, CBA, D.A. Points, LAS and Ed Parga, CBA, the team finished third in the Big Ten Championships and advanced into the NCAA Championship.

At the NCAA Central Regional Tournament, the Illini finished 12th and made the cut by finishing ahead of 10 higher ranked teams.

In the national NCAA Championship, the team finished in 15th place, while Points and Henderson finished 12th and 16th, respectively.

Points earned All-Big Ten honors and was a 3rd team All-American.

Larry Nuger, sophomore in CBA, won the medallist award for the Fossum Invitational and the Big Ten Championship.

In the final MasterCard ranking, Illinois finished in 29th place.

Seeking to rebuild

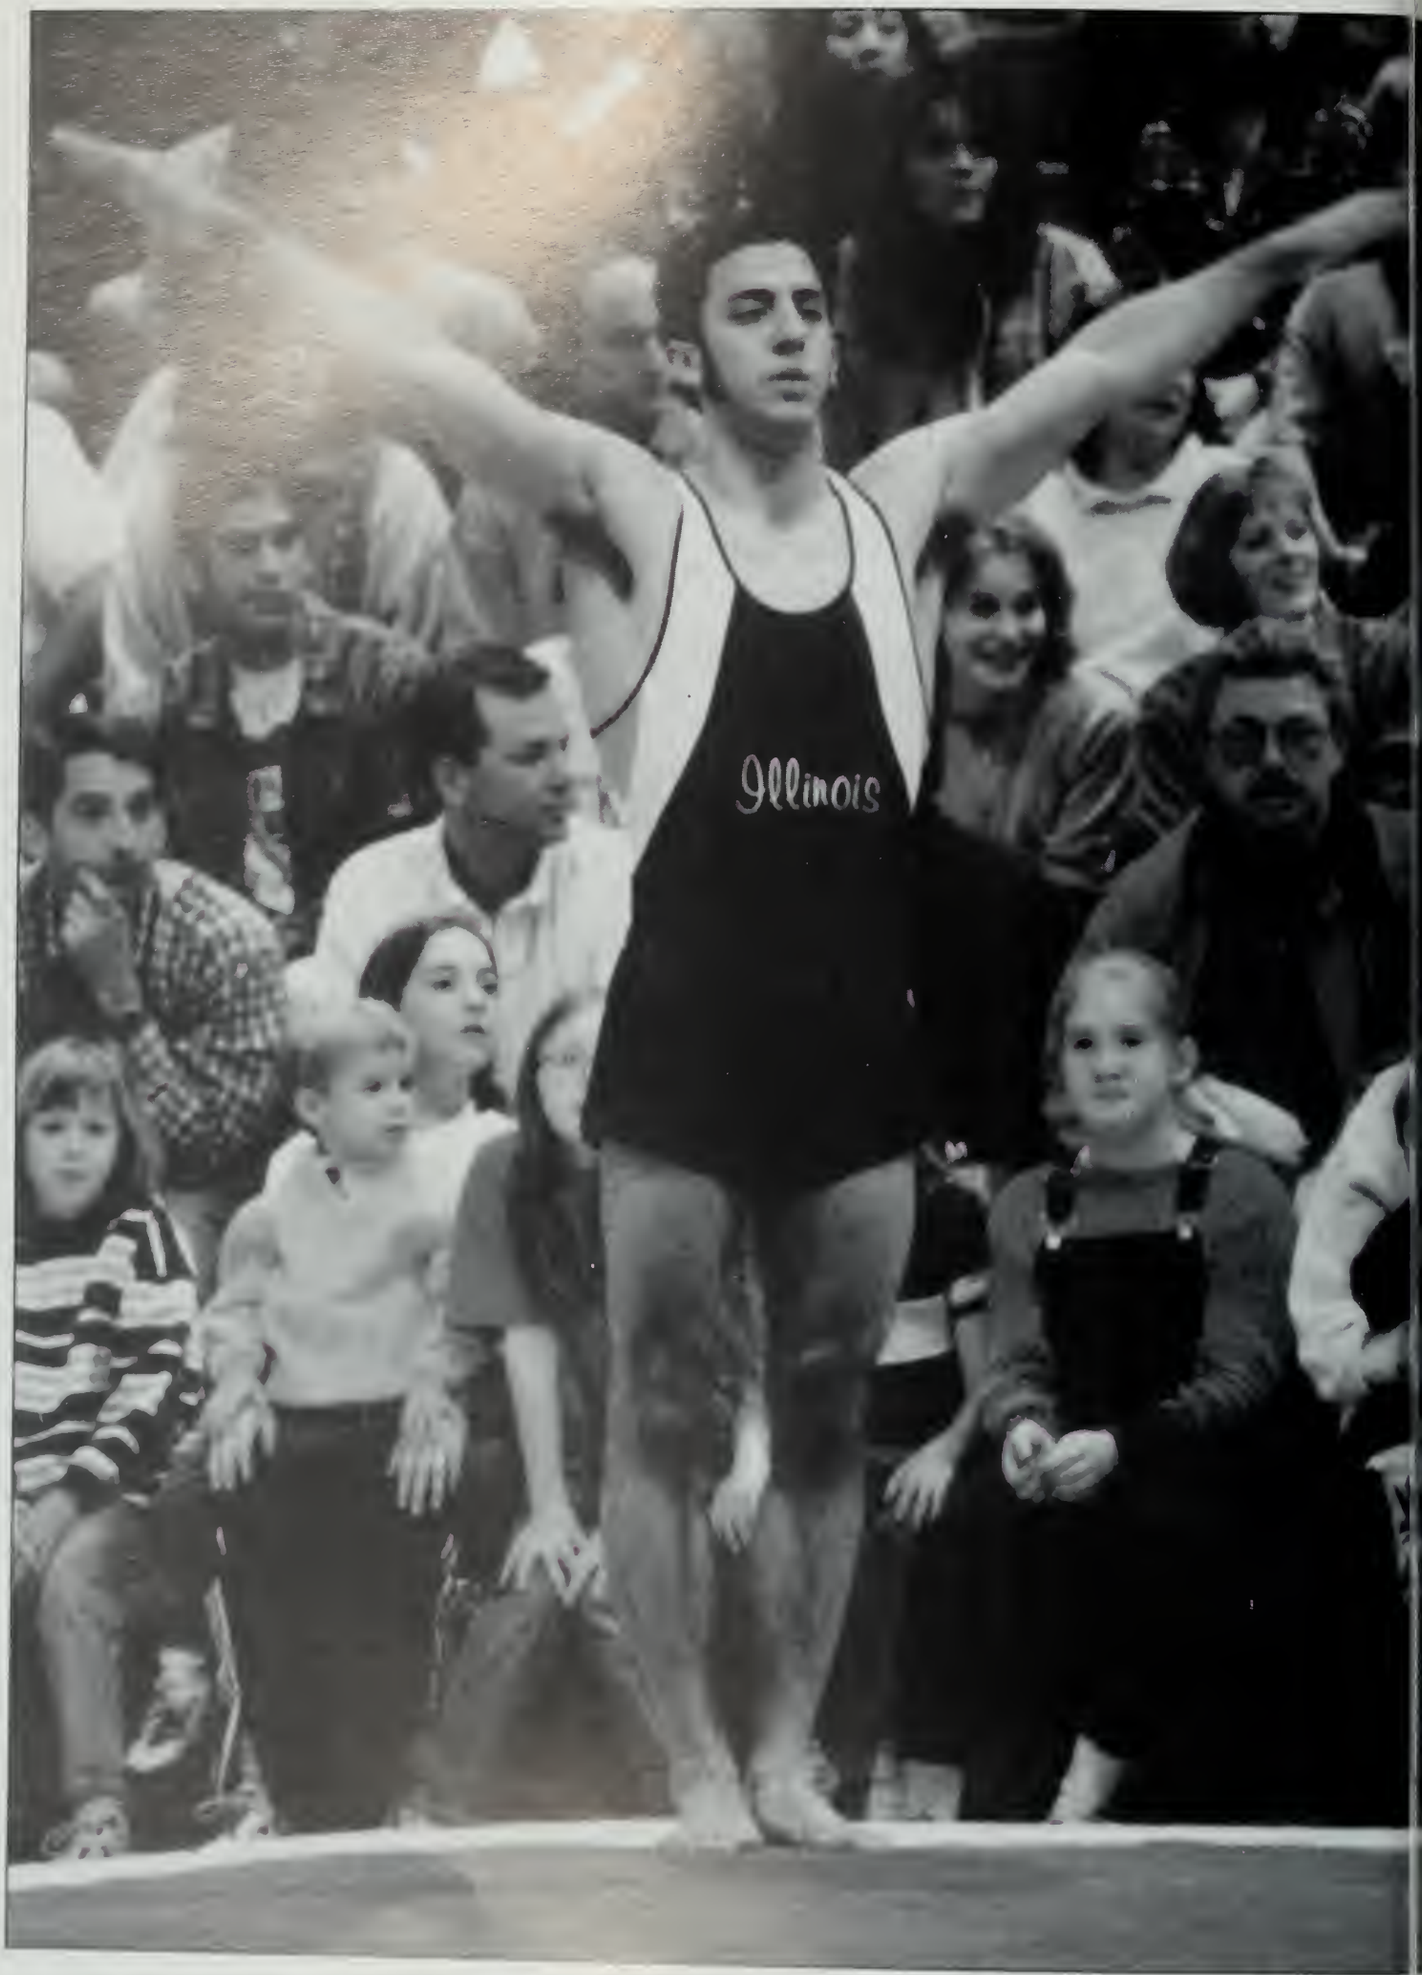

With only three returning players, the young 1998-1999 golf team had a lot to learn. This youth included two freshmen and two new players on the travel squad.

Julian Sitter, senior in Education, made the team's low average of 82.3. Sitter's highest finish of the year was a fourth place finish in the Illini Classic.

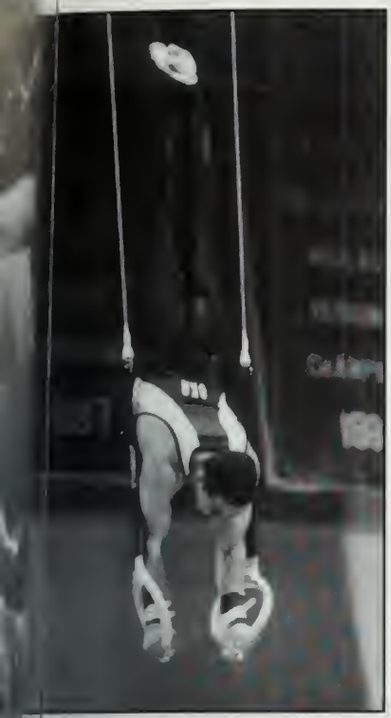

The Illini Classic was the best result for the team as they finished fourth out of 14 teams. Their final match of the season came at the Big Ten Championships where the team finished in 11th place.

After only playing seven tournaments, Sarah Kim, freshman in LAS, earned a varsity letter for her play. Her low round came at the Illini Classic with a score of 82 on a par 75 course.

With a youthful core of freshman and the experienced seniors, the team maintained a positive attitude as they continuouly tried improving their scores.

Hanging on, despite the odds

Under the guidance of head coach Yoshi Hayasaki, the Illini men's gymnastics team produced another winning season with a record of 9-8.

The jewel of the team's season was the competition against No. 2 Ohio State on March 16. The Illini set a school record of 230.0 points against the Buckeyes.

"We had a great night," said Hayasaki. "It all came together tonight. We finally put all the pieces together."

The team placed an admirable fourth at Regionals, despite the earlier loss of the team's captain and defending NCAA all-around champion, Travis Romagnoli, junior in LAS.

"I feel that finishing the season in fourth at Regionals, minus the number one all-arounder in the nation, was incredible," said Paul Linnenburger, sophomore in LAS. "Nobody expected us to do that."

"This team proved to the nation that we are one of the best, even without the number one all-rounder in the nation."

MEN'S GYMNASTICS

Creating new standards

The Illini women's gymnastics team began the season with losses against No. 2 Florida and No. 7 Michigan State. The women bounced back to a winning season and an appearance at the NCAA Regionals.

A highlight of the season was the team's success at the Illinois State Meet. The Illini won first place in four of the five events, with Gina Wiechmann, junior in ALS, taking first in the all-around and Kim Berres, senior in ALS, placing first on the beam. Wiechmann also won the balance beam competition at the Big Ten Championships, at which the team placed fifth.

For the second year in a row, the Illini had a post-season trip to the NCAA Regionals where they placed fifth. The women ended the season with an overall record of 10-7-1, 4-3 within the Big Ten.

Experience leads the Illini to new expectations

There was an amazing achievement at Atkins Tennis Center during the 1998-1999 men's tennis season. The Fighting Illini, ranked No. 2 in the nation, won the Big Ten Championship for the third straight time. Along with these wins, the men's tennis team broke a school record with 28 wins. They also came in second in both the Blue Grey Classic and the National Indoor Championship.

The Fighting Illini experienced its second perfect season in the Big Ten.

"Every Big Ten team considers us their match of the season because on paper, we should win," said Oliver Freelove, senior in CBA .

In addition to the Big Ten Championship, the team also beat some very competitive teams throughout their schedule, including No. 10 Duke, No. 12 Tennesse and No. 1 Stanford.

Although they won these matches, the team remained focused on their goal of winning the NCAA Championship. They reached the Elite Eight of the NCAA Championship before losing 3-4 to Mississippi. The team lost only one match on their home court.

Freelove was named the Big Ten Athlete of the Year as he became the only All-American named to both singles and doubles. His teammate Cary Franklin, junior in LAS, was also named an All-American for his doubles play.

The graduating class was one of the most successful in school history. Seniors Gavin Sontag, CBA, Jakub Teply, Engineering, and Freelove are ranked one, two and three respectively in career victories.

Coach Craig Tiley was the recipient of the Wilson/ITA National Coach of the Year award and the Big Ten Coach of the Year award.

New coach brings winning mentality

New head coach Sujay Lama prepared the team to battle ranked teams like No. 17 Arkansas and No. 13 Notre Dame. The team started out slow, but after winning their first game against Middle Tennessee State University, they improved.

"It's always special to get that first win," said Coach Lama. "I'm most happy for the team because they needed this win after a tough weekend."

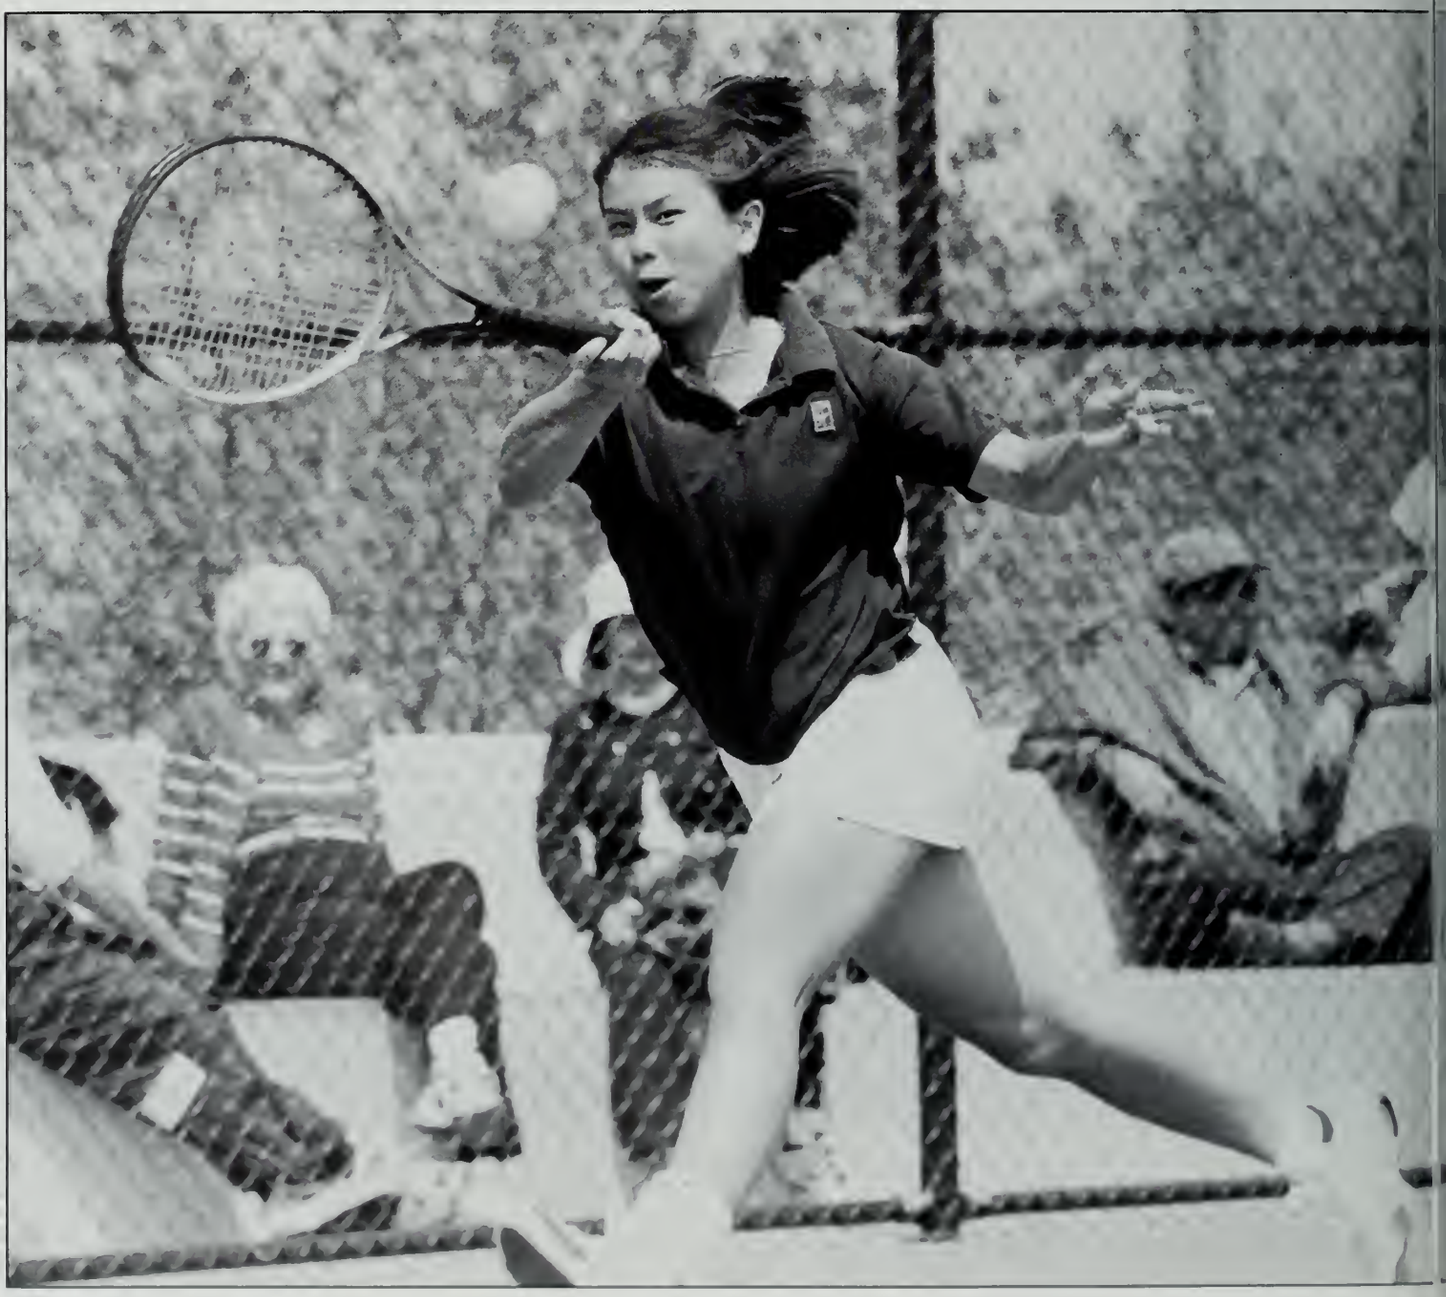

Once conference play began, they began to win regularly. With a difficult Big Ten schedule, Coach Lama inspired each of his players to reach new expectations for themselves.

The Fighting Illini earned a spot in the NCAA Championships, but lost in the first round. They finished the year with a record of 13-11, 8-4 in Big Ten play.

"For them to have success on the court after all the hard work they have put in means everything," said Coach Lama on his tennis team.

Maturity keeps the Illini running at full speed

The 1999 track team featured the return of nine Big Ten place winners. With this solid core of athletes, the team got off to a quick start.

The team hosted three other teams in the Illinois Invitational, their first meet of the year, and successfully defended their title from a year ago.

The team continued their success in the Big Ten Indoor Championship. They finished in second place out of 11 teams.

After the indoor track season ended, the outdoor season started, in which they took the Southern Illinois Invitational title.

At the Big Ten Outdoor Championships, the Illini finished in fourth place out of 11 teams. Sherman Armstrong, sophomore in LAS, and Bobby True, senior in CBA, won Big Ten Championship titles in their individual events, 110-meter and 400-meter hurdles for Armstrong and 800-meters run for True.

Chemistry brings stability to the team

With six returning All-Americans and several new members, the Illini women looked to improve from their 1998 season.

The team began the indoor season with the Illini Invitational held at the Armory. They finished in second place out of four teams and followed with a first-place finish in the Park Inn Invitational.

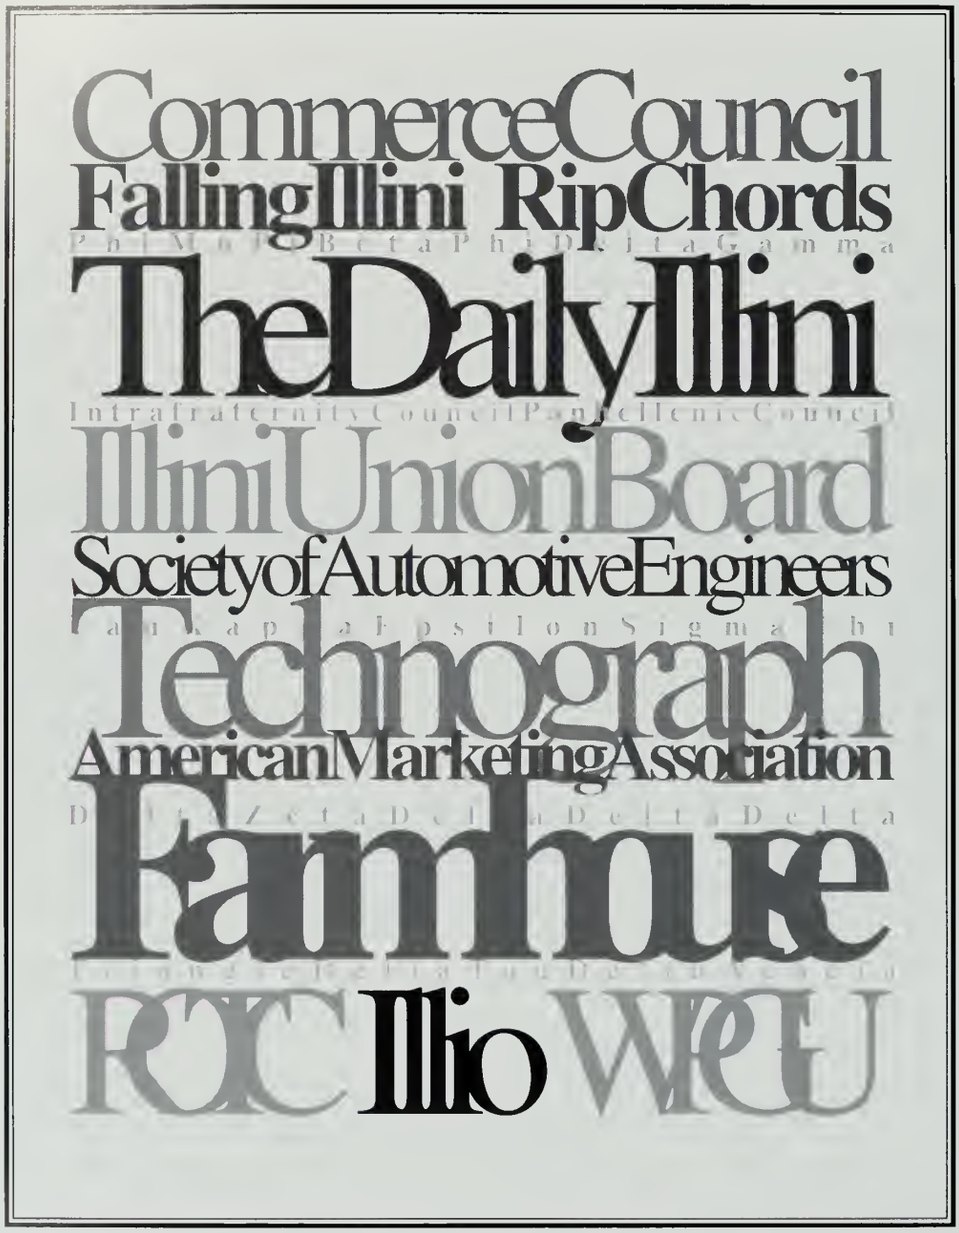

With this momentum, the ladies headed into the Big Ten Indoor Championships. They finished in sixth place out of 11 teams.

With the indoor track season completed, the Illini focused on their outdoor track schedule. Their first meet was in Houston, Texas for the Bayou Classic. The Illini finished in second place out of 11 teams. They continued their strong performances as they prepared for the conference championship.

At the Big Ten Outdoor Championship, the Illini finished fifth among the 11 teams. Aleisha Latimer placed first in the 100-meter hurdles while the relay team of Chequetta Bearfield, freshman in LAS, Aleisha Latimer, freshman in LAS, Laura Aschoff, sophomore in ALS and Kerry Richards, junior in Communications, won the 4 by100-meter relay event.

Illinois Student Government (ISG) is the official voice of the student body at the University of Illinois. ISG is composed of four elected officials, an elected assembly and six standing committees. During the term of the Fifth Assembly, ISG worked on several important student issues, including Campustown development, improving academic advising and multicultural awareness. By working with campus administration, and local, state and federal policy makers, ISG effectively represents the student body. Check out the website at http://www.isg.uiuc.edu.

HOMECOMING COURT 1999

The selection of a Homecoming Court was a tradition almost as old as Homecoming itself. Each year ten male and ten female seniors were selected by faculty and staff judges through an application and interview process. The Court was selected on the basis of academic achievement, campus leadership, community involvement and Illini pride. They represented the student body and presided over Homecoming festivities.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA

Alpha Chi Sigma was founded at the University of Wisconsin in 1902 to unite students in chemistry. It grew to include both men and women interested in every branch of the chemical sciences. The Zeta Chapter was founded at the University of Illinois in 1908, and was the largest collegiate chapter in 1999. The three objects of the fraternity were to bind its members with a tie of true and lasting friendship, to strive for the advancement of chemistry both as science and as a profession and to aid its members by every honorable means in the attainment of their ambitions as chemists throughout their mortal lives. These objects were promoted by the Zeta Chapter through the annual Brug lecture, faculty chats, a boy scout merit badge program, a formal, road trips to the other chapters and intramural sports.

ENGINEERING IN MEDICINE AND BIOLOGY SOCIETY

The members of the Engineering in Medicine and Biology Society are as diverse as the field itself. Students of this society were primarily enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or the College of Engineering. The benefits of EMBS included access to a valuable support base of contacts and resources to aid in the career development process. Also, up to date information was provided about the most recent developments and events related to the field of bioengineering. Additionally, the EMBS Student Branch Chapter provided organizational skills and presented the opportunity to meet faculty and students who shared the same interests. Since bioengineering involved students from both life science and the engineering colleges, the society participated in many different events. Some of the activities that EMBS participated in were Quad Day, Engineering Council, Engineering Open House, Annual Bioengineering Symposium, Bioengineering Awards Ceremony, volunteer work, employment expositions and social events. This year, in addition to their general meeting, society members have also participated in leadership and graduate school conferences. Engineering in Medicine and Biology Society promoted and encouraged students who had a specific interest in the application of engineering technology to the solution of biological and medical problems.

The Adopt-A-School tutoring program, a Panhellenic and Interfraternity Council service organization, worked hard to establish a relationship between the university and the local community. Over 100 AAS tutors volunteered in 4 elementary and middle schools and in one after-school program throughout the Champaign-Urbana area. They worked one-on-one with a student who may be experiencing difficulties in a particular subject. The student-tutor relationship built throughout the semester, and a bond of friendship grew as well. Many volunteers continued working with the same student semester after semester. Adopt-A-School was a great way to give back to the community and to help make a positive impact in one child's life.

By sharing house responsibilities from cleaning and cooking to house repairs, we hoped to learn what it meat to operate a functional and well ordered household in love. More importantly we tried to encourage each other into a closer communion with our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We also strove to be witnesses for God while on campus and wherever our different paths lead us. We aimed to do all of these things while keeping up with our various studies and enjoying our fellowship with one another.

ILLINI UNION BOARD

In 1942, the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois created the Illini Union Board (IUB) with the charge of providing cultural, educational, social and recreational programs for the students, faculty, staff, alumni and guests of the University. Besides creating and implementing over 150 programs each year, IUB serves as the advisory board for the Illini Union, the community center of the campus. Because of its responsibility to the University, IUB has been a driving force in establishing and maintaining a sense of community. From the traditional programming such as Block I, Musicals and African American Homecoming to the more innovative programming such as Quad Cinemas, Latino/a Formal and Love Quest: the U of I's version of Singled Out, IUB provides the campus community with several opportunities to become involved in the diverse life found at the U of I campus. With over 30 committees to choose, IUB offers students the chance to create programs that bring students, faculty, staff and alumni together.

Henry Ford sits at the tiller of his first automobile, the Quadricycle, in front of the John Wanamaker salesroom on Broadway between 49th and 50th Streets in New York City in 1904. The Quadricycle, completed on June 4, 1896, weighed only 500 pounds and had two forward speeds, but no reverse. Ford founded the Ford Motor Company in Detroit in June, 1903. He created the Model T in 1908 and by 1915 had produced one million automobiles. The invention altered the face of America, universally freed people from the horse and buggy and revolutionized the steel, rubber and oil industries. (AP Photo/Ford Motor Company)

The Titanic leaves from Southampton, England, on her maiden voyage on April 10, 1912. The world's biggest ship at the time, weighing 45,000 tons and almost 900 feet long, was considered unsinkable due to the watertight bulkheads of the steel hull. With some of the world's wealthiest people on board, the liner struck an iceberg on April 14, 1912, while crossing the Atlantic Ocean and sank in less than three hours. Of the 2,224 passengers and crew aboard the White Star ocean liner, 1,517 died because of insufficient lifeboats and ice water. The disaster resulted in new safety regulations for ships. Through his concepts ushered in the atomic age, he was a pacifist who warned against the arms race. Einstein, who radically changed mankind's vision of the universe, won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1922. (AP Photo)

The attack came three days after the U.S. dropped the world's first atomic bomb on the Japanese city of Hiroshima. Closing

These are rare photos from the Homer Lake retreat. Most of them were lost when Jason, Christine and Molly jumped off of the boats and into the lake.

Illio trips...

there was always trouble when the staff left the office.

Jason and Molly were having so much fun in Kansas City that they didn't sleep a wink.

Rachel, Jackie and Molly enjoyed the company of their stuffed animals in St. Louis.

Molly and Jesse's pajamas turned into "office pants" by the second deadline.

Christine poses especially for Jason.

Jackie and Rachel demonstrate the true love that exists among all of the Illio staff members.

The office...

where the line between work and play was sometimes blurred.

Jesse and Molly ate an estimated 36 pizzas together.

James broke the law and wore orange in the office.

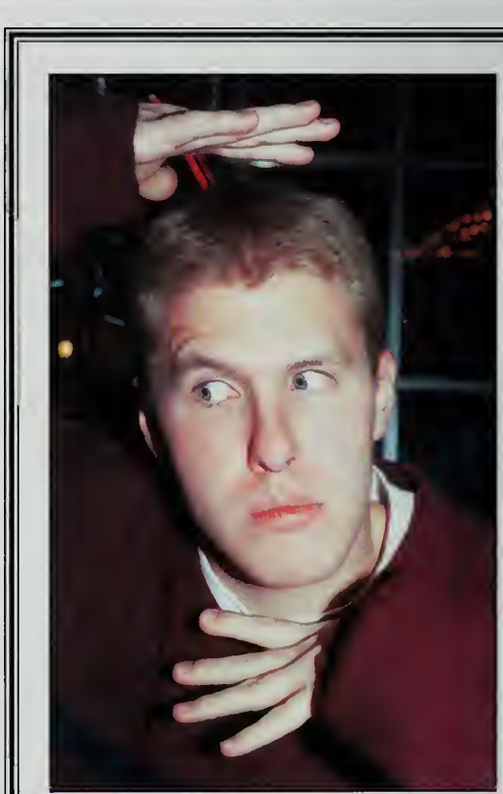

Although Jason held a special place in Molly's heart, he was the second runner-up for the title of Molly's favorite photographer.

Molly and Jason... there is such a thing as spending TOO much time together.

Jason never figured out the method to Molly's madness.

Molly tries to give Christine bunny ears and ends up making herself look really stupid... again.

Jason dressed in character for Halloween.

The fun times

Jason's pre-New Year's Eve party was just one of the times the staff got together outside of the office.

Everyone who worked with me this year knows I can be long-winded. This letter probably won't be an exception. There are too many people I could not have done this without.

I know that Jesse hated when I called her my sidekick, but she deserved a more original title than "assistant." There are so many things in my life that wouldn't be complete without you I wouldn't have gained ten pounds from eating pizza twice a week, since you always convinced me to order it, even when I was kicking and screaming in refusal. I wouldn't have a clean pair of white socks, nork (I mean nor) would I have sanity. Regardless of what I said on November 19, 1999, you never betrayed me once.

For every year I have been on yearbook, the staff improves and I consider myself lucky. I appreciate you all for sitting through my two hour long meetings and listening to my belly-aching (literally). I spent more time in the office than I needed to, but y'all contributed to making the office a fun place. (I am still convinced that you sneak in and leave half-empty pop cans all over the place, but anyway...) I hope that you guys who are graduating will stay in touch next year. Jason, you will have to call me at least once a week or I will start having symptoms of withdrawal, and that can't happen because who will I call and talk to about it if you aren't here?

Our publisher Jim McKellar was probably my biggest fear coming into this job. Jim, I don't know why I thought that because now I think you were the best boss I could have asked for. You were always willing to talk about anything, which was why my daily stops in to say hello always lasted an hour. You didn't laugh in my face when I told you I wanted a linen cover that could cost $3 a book. You were sincerely concerned when I got sick. You never preached to me about deadlines, and you put complete faith in me. Sometimes I exaggerated my confidence in our progress, but I would never miss a deadline. You were the type of boss I wouldn't want to let down.

Our new adviser, Mary Cory, also allowed me the freedom to do what I wanted to, but was always willing to give advise on matters I felt I needed guidance. Mary, you always had an idea and an uplifting attitude, which are two valuable qualities in this business, and I think the business side of things is better because of you.

Our new printing company, Herff Jones, and representative Deanne Korich were on the ball the entire year. The plant earned my trust by giving me cookies and caffeine during our plant tour in Mission, KS! I find it comforting to have a personal relationship with the people in charge of the production of the book. Jim Ferris, I will look forward to seeing you again before the start of next year. Julie Bogart, you seemed to knew more about my pages than I did sometimes! I had high aspirations for this project and Deanne always found a way to make them happen and I am not quite sure how! You worked hard to get this account and you never slowed down all year.

I would also like to thank the other companies we do business with, Thornton Studios and Scholastic Advertising. Senior portraits and advertisements are big sources of revenue for the book and we rely on help from good companies like you for help doing this.

I also want to tell Sarah Riley, editor in chief of the Daily Illini, that I appreciate your active interest in our work. It is nice to have someone from upstairs come down every once in a while just to look at stuff. Also, I want to thank photo editor of the D.I. Casey for coordinating the photo stuff with Jason. All of the students and faculty of the Illini Media Company were especially helpful to us at times. Todd Manchester (editor of the Technograph), you were always a good friend. You and your staff always let us dominate the computers even when you had deadlines, too. The advertising printer came in handy to us when our was malfunctioning. Jim Grisham, thanks for not running the other way whenever you see me. I definitely appreciate all of the technical work you do for us. Our deadlines could not have been met without our equipment. And then of course there is the Illini Media Company Board of Directors that hired me. This company has made my college career so much better.

Miss Smith is the reason I even applied to be the editor in chief. You taught me almost everything I know about yearbooks while I was in high school. Without you having been so hard on me sometimes, I don't think I would have the discipline I have now to be in this job or this major.

I miss you, Family! Well, this is what I have been doing all year. I hope you like this book...I am sure it is comforting to know that the money you are spending to send me here is going to a good cause, since it isn't straight A's!

Phil, I told you I would get you in the book. The whole staff got to hear about you the entire year, so they can back me up when I say that no one cares about you like I do.

I also want to give special mention to the Peterson Family. Babysitting Nora, Mark, Matthew and Derek is the one of the most rewarding things I do.

Rather than thanking my best friend and roommate, Kelley, I think I will apologize. Girl, I am sorry for all of the times you called the office and I told you I would be home in an hour, and it was more like five hours. And I am sorry for all of the times you waited for me to come home to eat dinner and I had already ordered a pizza at the office without you. We will make up for lost time, I am sure, since we will probably be living together in our "new" Urbana apartment forever!

(While I am apologizing, I want to express deep remorse to Johnny Rzeznik, lead singer of my favorite band, the Goo Goo Dolls, in case I misspelled his name in the Student Life section. It was completely my fault and I would understand if you never want to marry me anymore because of it.)

I can't forget the reason I had a job this year; the people of the University of Illinois. When I receive phone calls and letters from people wishing to locate an old Illio from the year their great-grandfather graduated, or a photo of a person who did wonderful things for their organization, just to see what they look like, I am reminded of the reason the yearbook exists. It is important to have a record of the past and preserve the present, and in the future the Illio will be the only history book of the University of Illinois.

Every page of this book has a story behind it; not just the one that the words tell. Hopefully it will evoke as much emotion in the people reading it as it did for the people creating it.

Until next year,

Molly Craig 2000 Illio Editor in Chief

Being only the faithful sidekick, I don't have nearly as much to say as my fearless leader but there are a few thank you's I would like to bestow. I've loved my job as assistant editor-in-chief and it's the people around me that make it possible to work as much as I do and still enjoy life. I'll start with the outside world and work my way into the office. First I would like to thank my dear friends for diversion, fun and help when I've needed it. Thank you to Kate for bringing me Skittles, calling me while I'm at work and being a great friend in general. Thank you to Nate for always reminding to get out and have fun. Also for encouraging me to spend my paychecks since I can't take them with me. Thank you to Aaron for bringing me Skittles, making me lunch and keeping me company late into the night. Thank you to Jesse for making my life a happier place to be and agreeing to sign a lease for an apartment close to the office.

The next thank you's that I will extend are to outside organizations that are near and dear to my stomach. Thank you to Jimmy John's for being right next door. Thank you to Domino's for having Monday Madness. Thank you to Papa John's for having great breadsticks and believing that we had coupons.

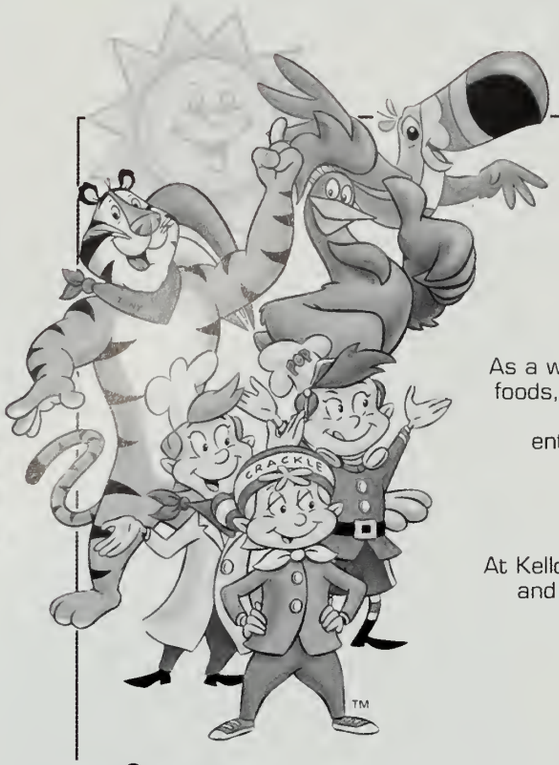

I would like to thank whoever is in charge of having illegally parked cars towed from the IMC parking lot for not ever towing me even though I persistently parked illegally.

Now I move into the office. First I would like to thank the editors Amy, James, Jackie, Angie, Jason, Christine and Rachel for doing the best work that they could under our misguided direction. A special thanks to James for doing his own ladder and not using any captions in his section (fewer names for me to index) and to Jason for scanning and taking pictures every time I politely asked him to (demanded him to). I would also like to thank Kerry for indirectly giving me the opportunity to do this job and I hope to see you in the office (too much) next year.

Last, and most importantly I would like to thank Molly for being far more than a fearless leader. We've had a lot of fun, a lot of late nights and a LOT of pizza. You have done an excellent job of running this book without ever killing anyone. I know I'm not always on time and I can be a bit of a pain (Marydale), but I couldn't have done my job if you weren't good at yours. Congratulations and I'll see you next year.

Thank you all-

Cannon-Wallace, Jesse 427

Has Our Technology Ever Come Up Short?

...well, our protons are traveling a hair's breadth shy of the speed of light...

By colliding protons at magnificent speeds, Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory is continually unraveling the mysteries of our universe through the discovery of the basic building-blocks of matter. It's heady stuff. As the world's leader in high-energy particle physics research, however, we also have a very good grasp of a simple truth: we don't take a single step forward without the finest engineers and I.T. professionals at our side.

Not...one...step.

While physicists are conducting mind-bending research at our facility, it's our people behind the scenes who are making it possible. And it's these professionals who are being rewarded with technology so advanced that to work anywhere else would be a significant step backwards.

As is only appropriate, we are always on the lookout for the finest minds in:

"With AmeriCorps, I saw beyond my neighborhood for the first time."

After graduating from college Josh Bartis joined AmeriCorps to help the youngest members of his community—and he discovered a whole new world. As a teacher's aide in a low-income neighborhood near his home in Boston, Josh worked with students well beyond the regular school hours and provided support they often didn't get at home. If you see a problem, you have a responsibility to do something about it. Josh says. AmeriCorps gave me that chance.

FOUR YEARS OF COLLEGE DOWN THE TUBES.

If you think the tests in college are tough, wait until your first job interview. Last year, America's businesses lost $60 billion to drugs.

So this year, most of the Fortune 500 will be administering drug tests. Failing the test means you won't be considered for employment.

After all, if you're into drugs, how smart can you be.
